

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A recording medium, method and apparatus for recording digital data streams are provided. The method includes recording a received digital data stream of data packet units by grouping the data packet units into an object, and creating and recording a managing information for the object. The managing information can include entry information associated with an entry point of the digital data stream and information indicating whether or not the entry information exists.